About the Oeste Region

The Oeste (West) Region of Portugal, just an hour north of Lisbon, is an area of protected and outstanding natural beauty with spectacular cliffs, pristine beaches and local towns and villages steeped in history. Sample mouth-watering local cuisine, in particular the seafood - accompanied of course, by the Region's excellent local wine. This Region truly has something for everyone.

Oeste Attractions:

- Golf
- Tennis
- Surfing
- Diving
- Health/Beauty
- Restaurants
- Local Heritage
- History
- Nature
- Unspoilt

The village of Atalaia extends down to the delightful harbour of Porto das Barcas with its long stretch of sandy beach, just 5 minutes from the town of Lourinha. Project Zero is a small development of just 10 detached 3 bedroom, 2 bathroom villas some 500m from Porto das Barcas. Each villa has a private swimming pool and boasts panoramic sea views. All will be finished to a very high standard with superb designer Italian kitchens and bathrooms, underfloor heating, a central vacuum system and fitted wardrobes. A covered parking area is adjacent to each villa.

This exclusive development has proved immensely popular and there are very few units remaining so an inspection visit is imperative at the earliest opportunity to be able to secure one of these outstanding properties.

other areas within the Oeste region include:

Berlenga Islands

The Berlenga Islands are situated 12Km from Cape Carvoeiro in a small archipelago called the Berlengas. Berlenga Island itself, filled with mystery and beauty, is a nature reserve for the nesting of various species of birds and the preservation of various reptiles and other animals. You will also find there typical plants and flowers endemic to Portugal . Laced with grottoes and coves, the Berlenga Islands are an hour's journey by boat from Peniche. It also has a 17th-century fort. The island is famous for its number of diving locations.

Caldas Da Rainha

The Estremadura on the lower half of the Costa De Lisboa (Lisbon Coast), is the alternative Algarve in every sense of the word. Discerning visitors who were familiar with the Algarve twenty years ago will find much that is familiar here. Sixty miles north of Lisbon is an area totally unspoiled, which boasts quite an extraordinary wealth of architecture and fascinating towns. The beaches equal any in the Algarve, and the countryside is open and undeveloped with fertile rolling hills just as beautiful as the famous Minho ranges.

Obidos

Once the wedding present of a queen, the preserved medieval town of Óbidos lying 100 km north of Lisbon is without doubt one of Portugal's most classic walled settlements.

Walking the ramparts, visitors can enjoy views of windmills, vineyards, and surrounding farmlands. In the residential area below, narrow cobblestone streets are lined with whitewashed houses sporting terracotta roofs. The shops are piled high with local handicrafts, while in spring the town is ablaze with geraniums, morning glories and bougainvilleas. Obidos is famous for being the site where the 10-year-old Afonso V married his cousin aged 8, the Church of Santa Maria also boasts exquisite 17th-century tiles and a fine Renaissance tomb.

Peniche

Partly enclosed by 16th-century walls, Peniche is almost entirely dependent on the sea. It's fishing industry and port, fishermen, trawlers, and seagulls mark the atmosphere of this town, with its whitewashed houses and narrow streets. No wonder it has excellent fish restaurants, also specializing in seafood and shellfish dishes, and that it affords the visitor facilities for deep-sea fishing.

Tourists are also curious to visit the Fortaleza, a 16th-century fortress, overlooking the sea, that was used as a prison during the repressive former regime that ended in 1974.

Golf in Portugal

This region is prime golfing territory, with no less than 12 first class courses all within easy reach. Amongst the best, and in addition to Praia Del Rey, are Penha Longa - beautifully located and providing a superb test with spectacular views, the stunning Oitavos and The Golden Eagle. The quality and variety of courses is virtually unrivalled within Portugal. The courses are far quieter than the busy Algarve and we have access to agencies who offer greatly discounted green fees. The new Paimogo golf resort will be created near by.

Local Courses :

- Praia Del Rey
- Penha Longa
- Beloura
- Oitavos
- Golden Eagle

Praia Del Rey is truly one of Portugal's finest and provides a magnificent, championship standard test. This par 72 6662m course has a mix of true links and woodland holes combining perfectly to present a memorable experience. The coastal holes in particular provide a breathtaking setting.

Casa Pela Praia is located 250m from the first tee and practice facilities, with driving range, two putting surfaces, bunker / pitching green.

Full details of these courses as mentioned and others are available here.
